The Electoral College shall fulfil the requirements of Chapter 2 Section 8 of the HEO on the University Board's obligation to consult teaching staff, other staff and students in the process of appointing a vice-chancellor or deputy vice-chancellor.

The representatives of teaching staff with research or artistic expertise and of other staff on the Electoral College appoint teaching staff representatives to the University Board through elections and are responsible for any by-elections.

The Electoral College has 48 members of which 24 are teaching staff with research or artistic expertise and 12 represent other staff. The students appoint 12 members. The Faculty of Social Sciences elects three teachers with research expertise and one representative for other staff.

Members of teaching staff with research expertise at the faculty are eligible for election as representative of the teaching staff. Members of staff at the faculty that are not teaching staff with research expertise are eligible for election as representative of other staff.

The Nominating committee invites those entitled to vote to nominate candidates to the Faculty's four places.
